This innovative course was created by Dimensions and Helen Sanderson Associates.

Dimensions is a specialist provider of services for people with learning disabilities and autism. We are a not-for-profit organisation, supporting around 3,500 people and their families in England and Wales.

Helen Sanderson Associates is an international development, training and consultancy team. We work with people to change their lives, organisations and communities through person-centred thinking and planning.

The tools in this course, developed by The Learning Community for Person-Centred Practices (www.learningcommunity.us), will help you to make a difference to the lives of the people you support.
