

Just Enough Support

Just Enough Support is a planning process. That looks at how you can have the right amount of support. So you have more opportunities to be part of your community.

Just Enough Support will look at ideas and options for support. This is by using different types of support. This could be assistive technology, community support, support from friends and family and staff support. This process offers a way of finding out ideas and action planning. Which is included in the final decisions.

Just Enough Support was developed by Imagine Act Succeed and Helen Sanderson Associates. This builds on the work in the paper 'All Together Now'.

If you want more information you can contact Heather Cartledge - heather@helensandersonassociates.co.uk

Assistive is something that can help you do something.

Who did this and where did the pictures come from?

This has been put into easy read by Together All Are Able.

With the pictures coming from the Valuing People Clipart